

Michael Griffin

www.musiceducationworld.com

mdgriffin63@gmail.com

0420 481 844

Unlocking Musical Potential

A full-day Music Education Professional Development course suitable for instrumental and vocal, primary and secondary, classroom and studio music teachers.

Description

Motivation is the fuel of human choice and action. Self-directed learning is an over-arching aim of education. Mindset is the critical factor that determines learning effort and perseverance. It is without doubt a significant factor for musical success. Metacognition gifts freedom of the mind. These fundamental principles underpin the drive, the how, and the why of learning music. This is essential understanding for music teachers, and broadly applicable for all learning.

Michael Griffin presents a teaching strategy that maximises student drive, passion and curiosity. He draws from the great music education advocates of the past, relevant educational psychology (including Hattie, Dweck, Ericsson, Harvard Project Zero), modern neuroscientific revelation and case studies, to invoke a model of empowerment, engagement and possibility. This inspiring, interactive day will encourage music teachers to examine the methods and mindset that underpin their teaching, and to consider new ways of thinking and doing, resulting in greater student achievement.

Details

Wednesday Nov 1, O'Shea Centre, 19 Lovedale Street Wilston, BNE (4 km from the CBD)

Time: 9.30 -3.30. Coffee from 9.00am.

Inclusions: tea/coffee all day, morning tea, lunch, PD certificate of attendance, digital resources folder.

Cost: $350, tax deductible (Early bird registration $295 by Sept 2).

Email mdgriffin63@gmail.com to register.

Testimonials

Wonderfully inspiring - still on a high. – Guildball School of Music, London

So much information that is backed by research. Great advice and I'm inspired to try a new mindset in my teaching. – R Tombs, NSW

I had a great day learning about how students are motivated by progress. We were taught all about how to determine progress and how to instil a growth mindset in our students. I then took what we learnt back to the classroom and my students are more motivated in their music practice. – J Goodwin, NSW

Brilliant! Just what I needed to get back in the groove!! – Hampshire Music Service, UK

This was a first-class talk by a high calibre, international speaker. What a great start to a new school year. – Red Maids, Bristol

An excellent talk this evening. Michael is a superb speaker, and delivered key messages in such an engaging way. – Headmaster, King's High School, Warwick UK

Dear Michael, I loved every moment of your keynote session. Brilliant! Bravo! Paul Jarman, QLD

Michael Griffin is an educator, presenter, author, conductor and pianist. He has been the Keynote Speaker at numerous global education events and schools in more than 25 countries, including more recently the Qatar Music Academy, Harrow Music Service (UK), Eton College (UK) ZIS (Switzerland), AMIS (Dubai, 2017), Maryborough Music Conference (QLD 2017, opening keynote), and numerous MTA conferences throughout Australia and the UK. He has consulted for Cambridge University Press redesigning Kazakhstan music education, is a recipient of the South Australian Education and Arts Ministers' Prize, and is listed in the Who's Who South Australia. Michael has written seven books including Learning Strategies for Musical Success and Bumblebee! Rounds & Warm-ups for Choirs, available from him direct, Amazon, and Devirra music.